LVHack 2014 Sponsor Kit

This year's Hackathon will be April 11th-13th. Like previous years, we're expecting a good mix of software and hardware projects reflecting the unique history of the Lehigh Valley. This year we're also encouraging participation from designers and artists who are interested in hacking interactive installations and exhibits.

From games played on TV screens, to garden irrigation pumps - last year, we saw a variety of projects from a variety of teams. In addition to the resources at the FabLab, participants brought a number of 3D printers and electronic platforms to the event. LVHack is more than just a weekend, collaboration starts here and continues.

We believe this event is an important investment in building the tech community in the Lehigh Valley, and - expanding the participant draw again this year - hope to raise the bar once more.

Please take this opportunity to review the following information and sponsorship levels. We encourage the attendance and participation of representatives from your organization to share and experience these 3 days. We promise to deliver a unique event for all who participate.
